MYSORE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT,
CENTRAL OFFICE,
Dated Bangalore...15...December.....1922.

S+R 283.19

FROM J. Rhore, Esq., A.M.I.C.E.,
Chief Engineer of Mysore, Bangalore.

To

K.R.Seshachar, Esq., B.A.,B.E.,
Secretary to Government,
Public Works Department,
Bangalore

SIR,

I have the honour to inform you that on account of under taking large constructional works, such as, the Vari Vilas Sagara, Krishnaraja Sagara and the like, a number of hands are being entertained on temporary basis but by the time the works are completed and the necessity for these hands ceases, they will have put in a long number of years service. So far, opportunity has been taken the Department to confirm such hands when vacancies occur in the regular permanent establishment. However, the temporary service rendered by these temporary hands will not as a matter of course count as qualifying service for pension. In many cases nearly hal the period of their service will not count for pension and the time when they retire from service, the amount of pension they will draw will be very insignificant.

2. Of late, a number of temporary hands were not confirmed against permanent vacancies in the sanctioned scale, as of the re-organisation of the Department was under consi for some time. This longstanding question was decided in Sep 1922 and the allocation of hands under the revised scale sanction by Government was approved in September 1923.

3. In this a number of temporary hands have been brought on to the permanent establishment and these have put in a service extending over 8 to 12 years. As the service rendered by them is a continuous one, it would be a great hardship to them, if this service is denied for their pension. I therefore strongly recommend that the temporary service rendered in the case of these men may be ordered to be counted for pension. A list of temporary hands confirmed in the re-organisation scheme is enclosed.

4. The grant of such a concession is not uncommon, for in G.O. No.Fl.2115-G.P.3-21 dated the 13th November 1922, the temporary service rendered by such of the clerks of the Comptroller's office who had put in not less than three years' service on the date of the re-organisation of his office, has been allowed to count for pension.

5. I therefore request you will be so good as to obtain the sanction of Government to count the temporary service rendered by the officials of this Department also, for pension.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

M.V. Bhuskute 13-12-24

Chief Engineer of Mysore.

Forwarded, with compliments, to the ----- Financial Secretary to Government, for favour of --- remarks.

V. O. Seshachar

Secretary to Government, Public Works Department.

Bangalore, 2nd ~~December 1924~~ January 1925

Temporary service does not count for pension. Even in the case of the Comptroller's Office which is quoted as a precedent by the Chief Engineer, temporary service subsequent to the re-organisation is not allowed to reckon for pension. Any concession allowed to the Public Works Department cannot be denied to other departments and a wholesale relaxation of the present rule would make an appreciable addition to the pension liability of Government. I do not, therefore, think that the proposal made can be entertained.

2. 5 I am in full agreement with the view expressed by the Financial Secretary that wholesale relaxation of the rules is an inconvenient procedure involving heavy burden on Government. Keeping this in view, I still proposed that the concession of counting temporary service for pension in the case of the clerks noted in the statement might be shown on special grounds.

3. 6 It is an admitted fact that in the Re-organisation Scheme of this Department, there was much reduction of establishment consequent on the abolition of many offices but still it will be seen from the statement that there were many vacancies on the permanent establishment available to confirm a lot of temporary men. This is a clear indication that vacancies in the permanent establishment were, in the past, not being filled up then and there but only hands were being appointed temporarily to fill up vacancies for the conduct of work in the Divisional offices. Simply because that these vacancies were not filled up as they occurred, the benefit of confirmation with retrospective effect cannot be denied to men borne on the temporary list. Now that such vacancies are being filled as they occur, there will not be any difficulty future.

4. For these reasons, the clerks who were confirmed prior to and in the Re-organisation Scheme may be allowed to count their temporary service for pension. In the cases of those confirmed subsequent to the Re-organisation, no case arises, as argued by the Financial Secretary.

5. Orders of Government may therefore be obtained at an early date on the recommendation made in paragraph 4 above.

6. It may be stated that appointments in this Department are made always temporarily in view of the construction of large works, while in other Departments the practice of entertaining men temporarily is not in vogue. If the officials referred to are denied the temporary service it will take a long time for them to complete qualifying service for pension and it is not likely that they will be in the Department till then due to advanced age.

11 The question of temporary service is coming up for consideration frequently. The disposal of individual cases on their merits is not always satisfactory. It would be well to discuss the general question and arrive at an understanding according to which all cases of the kind could be dealt with.

12 One of the general principles of the existing Pension Regulations is that service rendered in temporary appointments, whatever its length, is not reckonable for pension: vide Art.248, C.S.R. Where the period of such service is short, say three or four years, the unfairness of this princ-ple is not much felt. Where, however, the service rendered is for long periods, say ten or fifteen

Note—Contn. sheet.

WD 2468—GPB—2,000 copies 20-6-24

fifteen years, the inequity of the present rule is obvious. It is not fair for any employer to keep in his service a person for a long period of years and then cast him adrift with no provision for old ~~xxxxx~~ age.

Some new rule, fair to the employer and the employee, has to be followed and in framing it, the following points have to be considered:

(1) What kinds of temporary service can be allowed to reckon for pension;

(2) The minimum period of service the continuous rendering of which ~~can~~ should give the employee a claim to pension;

and (3) Departments which require a provision of this nature.

Temporary service, for this purpose, can only be service rendered in respect of a n appointment specially created for a definite and limited period. Sometimes, acting appointments are also considered as temporary appointments, but no consideration is due to persons who hold only acting appointments. The next question that arises in this connection is, whether such service should necessarily be rendered in respect of one and the same temporary appointment throughout the period, or, whether it will do, if it is rendered continuously without any interruption, though in respect of different temporary appointments. I think it is only fair to permit the benefit of reckoning temporary service as pensionable, even though it is rendered in respect of different temporary appointments, so long as such service is continuous. From the point of view of an employee placed in circumstances of the kind contemplated, his service is continuous under the same employer though rendered in respect of more than one temporary appointment and having received the benefit of such service for an uninterrupted period, I think it is not reasonable for the employer to disown his obligation to provide for the old age of the employee, simply on the ground that the service was not rendered in respect of one and the same appointment. As regards the first point, therefore, the conditions to be insisted upon are two: (1) service should be that rendered in respect of appointments clearly coming under the category of temporary appointments, and (2) service should be continuous, irrespective of the consideration whether it is rendered in one of temporary post or in more than one such post.

15 The minimum period of superior service in a substantive appointment for which pension is allowable under the Regulations is ten years. If a person is kept on in continuous service for ten years, holding either the same temporary appointment or several such appointments I think the case is not, for this purpose, different, in essence, from that of the holder of one or more substantive appointments and continuous temporary service of not less than ten years may be given the right of pension.

NOTE—Contn. Sheet

Most

Most of the cases of temporary service arise in the Public Works Department and the ancillary Accounts Branch which forms part of the Accounts Department. I think that it will be sufficient for the present to limit the operation of the new rule to the temporary Public Works staff - Executive and Accounts.

Serial No.

One general objection that may be raised against the treatment of temporary service as pensionable is that it carries higher emoluments because of its being non-pensionable and it should not therefore be allowed pension rights. So far as the Public Works Department is concerned, I think this objection does not apply as, in most cases, the salaries allowed to the permanent and temporary staffs of that Department are the same or about the same. If the proposed new rule is introduced, it may be laid down that in view of the benefit it confers, temporary service ought now to carry higher emoluments, compared with the corresponding permanent service.

For reasons stated above, a rule in the following terms is proposed for consideration:

> "Continuous service of not less than ten years rendered either in the same temporary appointment or in different temporary appointments of the Executive and Accounts Branches of the Public Works Department counts for pension."

There is another class of cases in the Public Works Department which also requires to be considered in this connection. They are of officers

X1741-24

Serial No.

officers who, after rendering continuous temporary service of less than ten years -- cases of not less than ten years temporary service followed by permanent service come under the rule proposed above -- are drafted into permanent service and the question arises in their cases as to how such temporary service should be treated Most of the officers coming under this class can render the whole or the major portion of service required for earning full pension in substantive appointments and the concession to be shown to them need not be as much as in the case of those who hold temporary appointments for ten years or more. I think it will be sufficient if these officers are allowed to count for pension half their temporary service by laying down a rule as follows:-

> "Where continuous service of less than ten years rendered either in the same temporary appointment or in different temporary appointments, of the Executive and Accounts Branches of the Public Works Department, is followed by service in substantive appointments, one half of it will be allowed to count for pension".

Returned, with compliments, to the Financial Secretary to Government, for favour of further ---- action-

I am unable to agree with the Financial --- Secretary that when the temporary service is less than 10 years, only half the period of such ------ service should be considered eligible for pension. According to his proposals, if a person happens to be confirmed a little before he has put in 10 ---- years of temporary service, he will be eligible for pension for only half the period of temporary service. If, however, his confirmation takes place a little after he has put in 10 years of temporary service, he can count the whole period of 10 years towards pension. One feature of the Public Works Department is that the sanctioned scales are much lower --- than the actual requirements of the Department and as the result a large number of hands are borne on the temporary establishment both in the Executive and Clerical staff. I therefore think that the - concession to be shown should be more liberal-

Whether the executive staff may be taken to cover the clerical staff has to be made clear- in the proposals made.

As regards the treatment of leave referred to in para 3 of the Chief Engineer's note dated 18th March 1925, I may state that so long as the leave is authorised and the absentee is permitted to resume his appointment on the expiry of his leave, there is no objection to treat the period of leave as part of continuous service for this purpose irrespective of the fact whether it reckons for pension or not.

Regarding the point raised by the P.W.Secretary, the only remark I have to make is that the line of demarcation, wherever drawn, is bound to be arbitrary; for example, an officer who has rendered 25 years' service gets a pension equal to 30/60ths of his emoluments, while an officer who has rendered 24 years, gets only 24/60ths and this is because the line has been drawn at 25 years' service. The rules, I have proposed, are, I consider, liberal enough compared with the present position.

This is a referred case of the Public Works Department and it is accordingly returned to that Department for favour of taking further action.

Final Note by the Second Member of Council

Subject:—

6) Counting temporary service for pension in the Public Works Department.

6) Executive, accounts and clerical staffs are often employed in the Public Works Department in connection with temporary works undertaken by it and a large number of new entrants to the Department start service as holders of temporary appointments and continue in this position for long periods, and are thereafter drafted into permanent service. The question of how the temporary service of such officers should be treated for purposes of pension, has long been under discussion, and in the meantime, individual cases are being dealt with on their own merits and no general rule has been adopted for dealing with all cases of this kind. It is only fair to permit the benefit of reckoning temporary service as pensionable when it is fairly long and when it is followed by permanent service. This question was considered by the Council on 18th January 1928 when it was resolved as follows:

> "Continuous service for a period of five years in a temporary appointment or more than one temporary appointment may count for pension. Where the period of temporary service is less than five years, followed by service in a substantive appointment, half the period may count for pension."
> "The same rule to apply to clerical staff of the Public Works Department."

6) The Resolution of the Council may be graciously approved.
